

A MESSAGE FROM
THE NEW ART GUILD
PRESIDENT,
MICHAEL DAVIS

We are still in a holding pattern given the extremely high rate of covid infections in our area. We are working toward our move into the Treasure Island Community Center. Shows and indoor activities will take place there from now on. we don't know if we can plan a show this calendar year. In the meantime, we would like to plan some safer outdoor activities to take place after the weather cools down. Your board would be interested in your ideas. Are there TIAG members who would be interested in Plein Air painting? We could meet at city parks or other locations and paint. If you would like to take part in Plein Air please let me know. You can email me at davismichaelshannon@gmail.com

Any ideas are welcome. Michael Davis | President |

Cape Cod to Crescent Heights: Artists at Work

BY JANAN TALAFAER

From December to May, it's not uncommon to see Hilda Neily with her easel and palette of paints on the sidewalk of one of Crescent Heights brick-paved streets. She's an impressionist plein air painter in the style set forth by master impressionist painters like Monet and Renoir. Plein air is a French term for 'in the open air.'

In fact, Neily invites anyone who enjoys painting outdoors to come and join her. "The Impressionists often painted together," she says. "You can learn from each other, see something different."

Neily has the distinction of being one of the most prominent painters today in the Cape School of Art tradition. The historic outdoor art school was established in 1899 in Provincetown, MA by Charles Hawthorne, who also helped launch Provincetown's renowned art colony. Neily studied there for 15 years under the direction of Henry Hensche, Hawthorne's protégé.

The school is now a nonprofit and has the unique reputation of teaching artists and those who appreciate art how to 'see' color and light. . . READ MORE
